SEMESTER:1 2024-2028

DEPARTMENT OF COMMUNICATION AND MEDIA STUDIES

JOURNALISM

Journalism serves as the vigilant watchdog of society, its ink quill inscribing the narratives of truth and accountability. Through the lens of unbiased inquiry and meticulous investigation, journalists weave the fabric of information that blankets the public sphere. Their pens are not merely instruments of documentation but swords of scrutiny, slicing through the veil of misinformation and revealing the naked reality beneath. In the digital age, the echo chambers of social media amplify the importance of responsible journalism, where fact-checking and integrity stand as bastions against the tide of sensationalism and propaganda. From the frontline of conflict zones to the corridors of power, journalists bear witness to history, bearing the weight of ethical responsibility in their pursuit of the untold stories that shape our collective consciousness. In their hands lies the power to illuminate, to educate, and to empower, as they navigate the ever-evolving landscape of information dissemination with unwavering dedication and unwavering commitment to the pursuit of truth.
